Campaign There Has Been Dull and Uninteresting.

SCANDAL AIRED IN JUDICIARY

Election Will Be Held in Various States To-Morrow - Massachusetts Is Looked To as Political Weathervane for Next Year's Presidential Contest.

Elections will be held in several States to-morrow, but the result in Massachusetts probably will be awaited with more general interest, as the campaign there has the most clearly defined issue. The Bay State Republicans have made the tariff an issue in an attempt to defeat the re-election of Governor Eugene N. Foss. State tickets will also be elected in Maryland, Kentucky and New Mexico, but in none of these States has a prominent national issue been brought out.

Now Mexico will choose its first Governor. A multitude of candidates will give the electors of the new State an unusual variety to choose

The one striking feature of the cam-paign was the airing of a scandal over indiciary nominations in the Brooklyn-Queens District, where tentative charges have been lodged against Democratic leadors of conspiring to oring about the nomination of former Congressman William Willett for the supreme Court bench. A fairly large cote is expected.

Democrats, regarding the State as normally Democratic, have appealed for party loyalty to insure success at next national election, while the Republicans made the alleged extrava-gant expenditures of the last Legisla-ture, which was controlled by the Democrats, their principal issue.

Political Wenthervane.

Boston, Mass. November 5.—With a realizing sense that the action may be regarded as a political weathervane for next year's presidential contest, the voters of Massachusetts on Tuesday will decide whether Governor Eugene N. Foss, a Democrat, shall be given a second torm, or whether his young opponent. Lieutenant-Governor Froth noham shall return the Louis A. Froth ninam shall return the state to the Republican column. Other State officers and a ew Legislature also will be elected. The campaign has been somewhat personal, but national issues have played an unusually important part in it.

Governor Foss claims a victory by 50,000, while the Republican State Committee thinks Frothingham will win by 35,000.

The Journal, this morning stated that
